AFTER A HARD STRUGGLE.

THE SENATE PASSES THE ELECTION-STRAUSS BILL.

The Vote Of 39 to 34—A Act Its Between Mr. Hoar and Mr. Gallinger—The Debate in Detail—What the Senator Provides—Senator Hoar Wants Fraud Action on the Resolution to Investigate the Accounts of the Pacific Roads.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 8.—The Senate to-day resumed consideration of the Lodge election bill and was addressed by Mr. Wilson of Iowa. He would vote, he said, for the amendment (in proper form) of the principle of the bill. He regarded the question as one of political duties rather than of criminal conduct.

The Senate then proceeded to vote on the bill. The first vote was taken on an amendment offered by Mr. Hoar seeking to include for a member of Congress to accept any payment as an advance to expenses to the United States in any case in which the United States may be a party, or in which he himself may be concerned, or from any solicitor, agent or attorney, or from any solicitor about criminal cases. If such matters have been to induce that measure specially affecting the interests of such railroad are pending before Congress or are about to be pending during his term of office. The amendment (which was in the nature of a substitute to the original bill) was agreed to—yeas 39, nays 34—as follows:

YEAS.

[illegible]

NAYS.

[illegible]

The next question was on the amendment offered by Mr. Gallinger as a substitute to the entire bill. It was identical with the original bill except that it omitted the provision for the appointment of supervisors of elections, and provided that the Circuit Courts of the United States shall appoint as commissioners to take testimony in contested election cases persons who shall be residents of the district in which the testimony is to be taken, and who shall be members of the bar of the highest court of the State.

Mr. Gallinger explained the provisions of his substitute.

Mr. Hoar said that the provisions of the substitute were not satisfactory to him. He thought the provisions of the original bill were better. He would vote for the substitute, however, rather than see the bill defeated.

Mr. Gallinger's substitute was rejected—yeas 34, nays 39—as follows:

YEAS.

[illegible]

NAYS.

[illegible]

Mr. Hoar moved to amend the bill by striking out the enacting clause.

Mr. Gallinger moved to lay the motion of Mr. Hoar on the table.

Mr. Hoar demanded the yeas and nays on the motion to lay on the table, and they were ordered.

Mr. Hoar said that he had supposed that the motion to lay on the table was not debatable, but he would say that he was opposed to the bill because it was unconstitutional, and because it was unwise and inexpedient. He was opposed to it because it was a party measure, and because it was a measure which would be used for party purposes. He was opposed to it because it was a measure which would be used for party purposes. He was opposed to it because it was a measure which would be used for party purposes.

Mr. Hoar said that he

But Hardly Employed in Place of the Striking Longshoremen—It Develops the Strike to Secure the Right of the Men Who Are Not Unionists—Are Becoming Discouraged, Many Returning to Work—Commission Talk in Albany.

New York, Feb. 4.—There was a slight improvement in the condition of affairs on the piers this morning. The steamer companies are slowly recovering from the stagnation to business that the strike had caused and are moving freight with more dispatch than on any of the last five or six days. In spite even the work on the steamer piers is doing more by green men, and on the freight lines by dockhands or the freight hands. The State Boat steamship steamer and the Cunard Line steamship City of Chicago, scheduled to sail today with the transatlantic mails, will not be able to get off because of the strike. The strike is growing in Brooklyn. The contract drivers and shovelers in the docks along the Gowanus Canal struck today and also in other parts of the city. Police are guarding the non-union laborers and others working elsewhere.

A number of the striking coal handlers at the docks of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company returned to work today. The return, it is said, was unauthorized, and they will probably get no pay next week. The representatives of the Coal Exchange have today in one way and that both the Coal Exchange representatives had agreed to drop all of provisions for the hauling of the drivers, and that each contractor had agreed not to make them, but would employ whom he pleased. The drivers refused also to increase and hauling. The drivers on the pier of the Old Dock & Sturtevant Steamship Company struck against the work. That action would not affect the other piers, but it is expected that the drivers will all go out. The drivers and shovelers employed by the Consolidated Coal Company, operating the docks of the Long Island Railroad Company, struck this morning. The Consolidated Coal Company has arranged to have the docks worked by men who are not members of the Longshoremen's Union. The Consolidated Coal Company has arranged to have the docks worked by men who are not members of the Longshoremen's Union. The Consolidated Coal Company has arranged to have the docks worked by men who are not members of the Longshoremen's Union.

Commissioner Ely, this morning, said that the Commissioners had not yet received any communication from the striking longshoremen, but that they would be glad to receive one. He said that the Commissioners were willing to hear and consider any proposition that might be made by either side to the controversy. He said that the Commissioners had not yet received any communication from the striking longshoremen, but that they would be glad to receive one. Albany, Feb. 4.—Governor Flower, Attorney-General Hancock, Commissioner of Labor Peck and Commissioner of Public Works Aldridge met in conference this afternoon to consider the situation in New York. The Governor has been in communication with the Commissioners of Labor and Public Works for several days, and it is understood that the conference was called to consider the advisability of appointing a commission to investigate the strike. The Governor has the power to appoint such a commission, and it is said that he will do so if he thinks it necessary. The Governor has the power to appoint such a commission, and it is said that he will do so if he thinks it necessary.

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 4.—The Legislature to-day passed a bill providing for the appointment of a commission to investigate the strike. The bill was introduced in the Senate by Senator [illegible] and passed by a vote of 15 to 6. It was then sent to the Assembly, where it was passed by a vote of 40 to 20. The bill provides for the appointment of a commission of three persons, to be appointed by the Governor, to investigate the strike. The commission is to report to the Governor on or before the first day of March next. The bill also provides for the appointment of a commission of three persons, to be appointed by the Governor, to investigate the strike. The commission is to report to the Governor on or before the first day of March next.

Horrible Death of a Boy While Three Sisters Left Them.

A Small Fire, Easily Extinguished by the Department, in the Basement of the Home Owned by Each of the Infants, Where Parents at the Time Were Enjoying Themselves at the Dramatic Evening Entertainment.

The little girls, five, aged 4, and Emma, aged 2 years, the children of John Eisenmann, a German living at No. 60 Thirty-third street, were suffocated to death yesterday afternoon. The father is employed in D. S. Kenny & Co.'s lumber yard at the corner of Thirty-fifth and Iron streets. The mother left a year ago, and the children were left during the day in the charge of an older sister, Mary, who is 17 years of age. The Eisenmann family occupy the second floor of the dwelling which is a two-story and basement cottage, while the first floor is occupied by Charles Lohr and family. Mary left the children on the bed in a room at the rear of the second floor while she went out to call on a young girl of her own age at No. 6000 Auburn avenue, half a block away.

While sitting at the window with her friend Mary saw the bed clothes coming from the basement of her home. She at once started to give the alarm, but Officer Lennert of the Thirty-fifth Street Police Station had also discovered the fire, and he immediately pulled Box No. 57 at the corner of Thirty-third and Butler streets. The flames were subdued without much difficulty, and but little damage was done beyond the destruction of the bed clothing.

The children were together in the bedroom and they must have been suffocated very soon after the fire had been set out.

Chief Bonaparte of Engine Company No. 29 and Lieut. Carroll of Hook and Ladder No. 9 were standing in the alley at the rear when Mary Eisenmann came running to them and said that the children were still in a room upon the second floor. The house was still filled with smoke and the flames were subdued. Both men at once rushed to the room, but the smoke was so dense that they were unable to find the children. Lieut. Carroll then ran to the front door and broke it in with his axe, and the smoke poured out in a dense volume. Both men groped their way to the bed, and found the children lying side by side. They were carried out, but were dead when reached. Dr. Hall, who was summoned, pronounced life extinct. The bodies were then taken to the undertaking establishment of Peter Lynch, on Butler street, where the coroner will hold an inquest.

EUROPE'S BIG WAR SCARE.

GERMANY TO MAKE PEACE OVER-WARRANTY PLEDGE.

An Appeal to Bismarck—Confiding Remarks of England's Parliamentary Chief—Gratitude to the Emperor Unspoken—Germany and the Augustine Empire to Fraternize—Views of the Triple Government—Other Continental Items Over the Sea.

London, Feb. 8.—[Special Cable to The New York Tribune.]—The point of the last dispatch but one I sent you, which I think was a pretty correct interpretation of an article in the Berlin Post, was "Bismarck" stood to maintain the principle of that constitutional organ of the German Foreign Office as equivalent to a guarantee for the peace of Europe. Bismarck's retirement from the War Ministry of Prussia, Probably it was not so intended, but whether it was so, seems to me, if Bismarck leaves an unfriendly Parliament, the last step to maintain the stability of Prince Bismarck's efforts will be creating a crisis that will in the French temperament, and irrevocably commit us all with. The troubles all over Europe bring us really to an extremely sensitive state, the "black" and "bright" both very big for some to-day. Orders have been given to be in readiness today by another drop, due to be other ways. This explains the disturbance, but the whole drift of things during the last week or so really gave cheer points.

The dominant reasoning for the probability of Europe's main trouble is the fact that the Emperor William's personal position at Berlin is so much weakened through his youthful inexperience that he cannot control the Bismarck party, and is compelled to act with them. Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett, the Latest Fashionable and Successful Novelist, Gives the Impressions of Her Visit to the United States and Impressions of Certain Country — Miss Tarbell's Second Paper Finds Her Subject Even More Interesting.

"Successful At Any Time" is the most delightful book of personal experience and observation that has appeared since Mrs. Clemens' book of travels by that grand old humorist, "Roughing It," Mrs. Burnett has had a most delightful and varied career. Her friend and companion of years of delightful experience in the world, she has become intimately aware of the most remarkable experiences of her own and of foreign countries and people, wherever she has been, for Mrs. Burnett, personally has been her delightful friend to people of all stations in life and under all manner of circumstances.

Mrs. Burnett has had some of that which we of the less successful fear to be positively by reason of "The Story of the Heart." She has written some 200 pages in this entertaining book, from page to page in the same delightful manner. In her latest work she chooses to incorporate memories of her life, indeed, the whole book is absolutely free from anything unpleasantly reminding a friend or a foe. Perhaps she has greatly given more space both to both of life and various countries, showing always optimistic, cheerful courage for triumphing over the things all disagreeable and succeeding in a world of trouble. But especially has she made interesting to young people, though none will be so unwise to attempt to make the book as hers will.

The publishers will doubtless make a little mistake in the general plan of their announcement of the book, which would lead one to suppose that Mrs. Burnett had written a connected story about herself. Instead, the book is a series of chapters, each complete in itself, and containing a great variety of personal experiences, descriptions of places and people, and observations on life and literature. A Case Still Pending Against the Original Bell Patent—Other Suits Before the Courts.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 5.—The great question of Dr. Bell's invention of the telephone will be fought before the highest court when the Dorsey-Lowndes Bill of the next Congress has empowered for the Government counsel.

The Association of Western Harmonies and Lowery had been holding charming platform principles of law and science, but Judge Hill, chief counsel of the associated electric companies, and Mr. Bell, the inventor, Professor Gray, Judge Hill and the counsel of the Western Union Telegraph Company, to consolidate the language so as to include the interests of Elisha Gray of Chicago, the patentee of a similar thing at the Patent Office the same day with Bell's specification. It is important to you? said Bell's counsel only to attempt an argument in favor of the claims brought, thereby obtaining to plead the invention of electricity called telephonic currents, while Gray's instrument had no affinities save to similar magnets, but opposed by the Chairman of a wire to assist, and to Bell as the earliest successful inventor. Judge Hill pressed a competent working between Bell, Orlando and the Commissioner of the Patent Office. Wilson [sic], was afterward discharged, by reading a letter written by Bell to the patents, in June, 1875, in which Bell stated that Orlando had obtained information from the Patent Office concerning some application of Elisha Gray then pending, for certain telegraphic and stating that he (Bell) had in consideration of that knowledge transmitted to his Examiner for the same thing, for the express purpose of being put into interference with Gray, thus securing him the advantage of the Patent Office, and of the Commissioner of Patents, who, in their decision, have given Bell the benefit of the doubt, and have granted him the patent. Gray's counsel, Mr. Wilson, argued that Bell's application was fraudulent, and that Gray's invention was first in the field.
